GOLF COURSE MAINTENANCE

So far so good, that is how I would describe the course overseeding at this point. The seed has been down throughout the course for approximately one month and it seems to be establishing at about the rate I would expect. With the proper amount of irrigation and fertilizer the overseeding should begin to gradually mature.

Going forward we intend to begin working on detail items like edging cart paths and pruning low limbs on trees. With the onset of colder weather also comes falling leaves which will require our attention throughout the fall and winter.
